SoCal Museums Free-For-All Day

Bowers Museum is a proud participant in SoCal Museums Annual Free-For-All Day, which will take place this year on Saturday, March 23, 2024. During this single day, over 30 museums—presenting art, cultural heritage, natural history, and science—open their doors and invite visitors to attend free of charge. This offer is for General Admission only, is subject to availability, and does not apply to special-ticketed exhibitions.

Offer Recap:

- March 23: Free General Admission
- $10 tickets to Asian Comics

Join Bowers Museum for this memorable season where art and imagination will collide. Whether you're a long-time fan of Asian comics or new to the genre, these special events and offers are a fantastic way to connect with the community, celebrate creativity, and explore the museum in an entirely new way.

Dr. Seán O'Harrow, President and CEO of the Bowers Museum, states, "It is so important that we expand our service to the Santa Ana public, and when kids are home from school, particularly during the summer months, we want to be able to provide them, and their families, with interesting and engaging experiences. Free Santa Ana Summer is one way we can do this!"

About the Exhibition: Asian Comics

Never-before-seen at a museum and making its American debut, Asian Comics: Evolution of an Art Form presents the largest ever selection of original artworks from Asian comics, displayed alongside their printed, mass-produced forms. This exhibition is a vivid journey through the art of comics and visual storytelling across Asia. From its historical roots to the most recent digital innovations, the exhibition looks to popular Japanese manga and beyond, highlighting key creators, characters, and publications.

The Bowers Museum invites all comic enthusiasts, art lovers, and curious minds to dive into the mesmerizing world of Asian Comics. For tickets, opening hours, and additional information, visit bowers.org/comics.
